

September 21, 2009

Dear Parents,

Kindergarten is going to begin a behavior reward system that was outlined in your Open House letter. Each student receives 10 cubes at the beginning of the week and can lose or gain them according to his/her behavior. At the end of the week, your child will receive stickers for their own personal sticker chart in relation to how many cubes are left. A prize is then given when he/she turns in a full chart and the whole process starts over again.

In addition, your child's folder will now contain a "cube chart." Each day, your kindergartner will record, with supervision, how many cubes he/she has left. At the end of each week, a parent MUST sign the chart so that I know you have looked it over. It is imperative that every family fully participates in order for this to be a successful behavior program. Please remember that the chart must be signed each week, not each day. The cube charts are beginning today, Sept. 21, and your first signature is due by Monday, Sept. 28.

Thanks! Miss Taschler (taschlerb@catholicweb.com)

September 21, 2009

Dear Parents,

Kindergarten is going to begin a behavior reward system that was outlined in your Open House letter. Each student receives 10 cubes at the beginning of the week and can lose or gain them according to his/her behavior. At the end of the week, your child will receive stickers for their own personal sticker chart in relation to how many cubes are left. A prize is then given when he/she turns in a full chart and the whole process starts over again.

In addition, your child's folder will now contain a "cube chart." Each day, your kindergartner will record, with supervision, how many cubes he/she has left. At the end of each week, a parent MUST sign the chart so that I know you have looked it over. It is imperative that every family fully participates in order for this to be a successful behavior program. Please remember that the chart must be signed each week, not each day. The cube charts are beginning today, Sept. 21, and your first signature is due by Monday, Sept. 28.

Thanks! Miss Taschler (taschlerb@catholicweb.com)