Teens tend to feel overwhelmed by the sensational amounts of “NOs” in their lives. In a time of change and discovery, they’re searching to know who they are and how to live their lives. Jason Angelette seeks to help them understand their God-given dignity and invite them to a change that will lead them in truth to who they are and what they are called to be.

Far from something negative or repressive, chastity is the way to live freely and love purely. It is in this pursuit for purity that we are able to order our feelings and respond properly to an authentic love in all relationships.

Jason delivers sound and honest teaching, while sharing insightful advice through personal witness and humor to guide teens away from the many lies and temptations that bombard their hearts and confuse their minds. Although the modern world often portrays this as an impossibility to live out, with Christ all things are possible!

Jason Angelette received his Masters degree in Theological Studies from the John Paul II Institute on studies of Marriage and Family at Catholic University in Washington D.C. His ministry experience includes high school campus ministry, as well as teaching theology at the high school and university level. Jason intermittently travels in an international Catholic theater company known as Theophany, performing "The Jeweler's Shop," a play written by John Paul II. He also speaks at youth festivals, conferences, and retreats nationwide.

When Jason is not ministering to youth, he devotes himself to strengthening marriages as the Director of Faith and Marriage at Willwoods Community. He is also the co-host for a weekly television program on WLAE entitled Issues & Faith. Jason's deep love for teenagers combined with his passion, humor, and life experiences make him a great presenter for teens regarding chastity and the Theology of the Body. He and his wife, Elise, live in Louisiana with their three children.

This talk is open to all, specifically encourage the teenagers in your life to come and be open to the message Jason has to share.
